Niedermayer's surgery successful: Ducks

Last Updated: Tuesday, February 14, 2006 | 11:30 AM ET

Defenceman Scott Niedermayer may be out of the Olympics but it appears he will be good to go soon after the NHL season resumes in a couple of weeks.

His team, the Anaheim Mighty Ducks, announced Monday that Niedermayer's arthroscopic knee surgery was successful.

The Ducks said the operation resulted in the removal of a medial meniscus tear. It was performed in Los Angeles by Dr. Ronald Glousman.

The Ducks expect Niedermayer's recovery to take three to four weeks.

The injury forced the star blue-liner to withdraw recently from Team Canada for the Torino Olympics. Four years ago Niedermayer was a big part of the Canadian men's team that earned gold at the 2002 Salt Lake City Games.

Jay Bouwmeester of the Florida Panthers was added to the current Team Canada roster to take Niedermayer's place.

The 32-year-old is the reigning Norris Trophy winner as the NHL's top defenceman, winning the award with the New Jersey Devils during the 2003-04 season – the last season before the NHL lockout. He signed with Anaheim as a free agent last year.

He has nine goals and 33 assists in 57 games for the Ducks this season.
